

There is an opportunity for an Associate Lecturer to teach a module on New Religious Movements as part of the Religion, Ethics and Society course within the Theology, Philosophy and Religious Studies Department at the University of Chichester in Semester Two of next academic year.

Associate Lecturers are paid 3 hours a week for 12 weeks (including Reading Week) and their role would include marking assignments

The Semester dates are from week commencing 15/1/18 to week commencing 16/4/18 with a two week break over Easter from 2/4/18 to 13/4/18.

The University of Chichester is a great place to work which prides itself on its strong sense of community and its commitment to widening participation.

If you are interested in receiving further information please contact Ruth Mantin, the Programme Coordinator for Religion, Ethics and Society at r.mantin@chi.ac.uk