

Associate Professor in Migration Studies

The Saxo Institute, Faculty of Humanities, Copenhagen University, Denmark invites applications for an associate professorship in Migration Studies to be filled by 1 September 2014 or as soon as possible thereafter.

The Saxo Institute provides education and research within the fields of Prehistorical and Classical Archaeology, Ethnology, History and Greek and Latin.

Job content

The successful candidate will be affiliated with Centre for Advanced Migration Studies and will have a strong research and teaching profile in migration studies, where the teaching profile preferably includes migration theory, patterns of international migration and migrant culture.

The successful candidate will be expected to teach in English on the newly established inter-disciplinary Master's Programme in Advanced Migration Studies and to perform various administrative duties in relation to the programme in collaboration with other staff.

Furthermore, the candidate will have a keen interest in collaborate projects and is expected to contribute to the inter-disciplinary efforts and research activities of the centre. A record of successful grant application will be an advantage.

Duties include the candidate's own research, development of the field, assessment tasks, grant applications, and research management such as supervision. The successful candidate must also teach, supervise, prepare and participate in examinations, and take on other tasks requested by the centre.

Qualification requirements

When appointing a candidate to a post as associate professor, we stress that the applicant must have research and teaching qualifications corresponding to what can be achieved as part of a successful employment as an assistant professor.

The duties of the position are evenly distributed on tasks related to teaching and tasks related to research (including relevant administration and knowledge-sharing). Hence the assessment of applicants' qualifications will assign equal weight to documented competences in the field of teaching, pedagogy and didactics as in the field of research, research collaboration and research organization. In addition, applicants with experiences and reflections on how most effectively to integrate research and teaching activities will be given priority.

Furthermore, emphasis will be placed on the following:

- Research qualifications, which will be assessed in relation to the period of active research, the degree of originality, and academic output.
- The applicant's scientific record, academic breadth and depth, rigour, thoroughness and accuracy
- Teaching qualifications, (including the ability to conduct teaching in both Danish and English.). See also Educational Charter at http://www.humanities.ku.dk/about/vision_and_goals/educational_charter/
- Documentation of administrative qualifications
- Documentation of research management
- Participation in networks - national and international

Within a reasonable period of time (max. 2 years), non-Danish-speaking appointees are expected to acquire proficiency in Danish sufficient to teach in Danish as well as interact with colleagues and students.

For further details about the qualification requirements for associate professorships, please refer to the job structure for academic staff <http://fivu.dk/lovstof/gaeldende-love-og-regler/uddannelsesinstitutioner/stillingsstruktur-28-6-2013.pdf> (only in Danish)
