Job Announcement

Ludwig-Maximilians-University Munich is one of the largest and most renowned universities in Germany, with numerous areas of research and instruction.

The Chair of Religious Studies (Prof. Dr. Robert Yelle) in the Faculty for Philosophy, Philosophy of Science and Religious Studies at LMU Munich, seeks beginning with October 1, 2015

A scientific co-worker (PhD candidate) (part time 65%)

Your Tasks:

- Research on your own PhD project and in the general field of the Chair.
- Teaching in the amount of 3.25 semester hours, as well as student advising.
- Active participation in the administration of the academic program.
- Scientific development is an integral component of the work and will be actively supported.

Your Profile:

Requirements for candidacy are a degree in religious studies or a closely allied field that permits entry into a course of study leading to a PhD in religious studies, as well as the preparedness to carry out a dissertation project in the area of research of the Chair.

Languages of the department are German and English. Requirements are a very good proficiency in English (spoken and written) and a willingness to learn German.

Our Offer:

The Interfaculty Program in Religious Studies offers the BA and MA degrees and numerous possibilities for research as part of an interdisciplinary network. Further information is available at <http://www.religionswissenschaft.uni-muenchen.de>.

Your office is located in central Munich and is easy to reach via public transport. We offer you an interesting and responsible position with excellent opportunities for further advancement and development.

The compensation follows regulations for the salary group E 13 TV-L (part time 65%). The position is tenable to September 30, 2018. There is no possibility of an extension.

Disabled applicants with essentially similar qualifications will be given preference. Applications from women are expressly encouraged.

Please send by July 1, 2015 at the latest your complete and relevant application documents (e.g. curriculum vitae, diplomas, list of courses taught (if any), list of publications (if any), description of your proposed research project (max. 5 pages), and the names and contact information of two references, by email and in a .pdf attachment (max. 5 MB) to:
