

CFP: Perfection (21st Joint Postgraduate Conference on Religion and Theology, 11-12 March 2016, University of Bristol)

Celebrating the golden anniversary of the Department of Religion and Theology at the University of Bristol, we are delighted to announce that the theme of this year's annual postgraduate conference is 'Perfection.' The conference, run in partnership with six universities and colleges in the south west, is an open and friendly forum in which postgraduate students and early career scholars from all disciplines are invited to present work addressing any aspect of religion or theology. Proposals addressing the broad theme of 'Perfection' are especially welcome, however we wish to stress that, as in previous years, proposals for all work on any religious tradition will be considered.

Abstracts of up to 150 words for either 20-minute papers or for posters are to be submitted online by the 19th of February, at bristol.ac.uk/pg-rt-conf

For further details, please email us at pg-rt-conf@bristol.ac.uk

Or, visit our Twitter and Facebook pages:

<https://www.facebook.com/pgRTconference>

<https://twitter.com/pgrtconference>

If this email carries a protective marking it means the information contained within it is sensitive and confidential. Please do not disclose this information to individuals who do not have a legitimate right of access to it.

Please delete this email when it is no longer needed, and securely dispose of any printed copies you have made. Please contact the AHRC Information Services Manager if you have any queries. Email: enquiries@ahrc.ac.uk