

***Spaces available at the Emergent Religious Pluralism(s) conference in Cambridge*****

The Woolf Institute in Cambridge is hosting a 2-day conference on the theme of religious pluralism, on 17-18 April 2018. The event will bring together experts from a broad range of disciplines - including theology, political science, anthropology and religious studies - to explore varying conceptions of, and commitments to, religious pluralism around the world.

Keynote: Professor Nasar Meer, University of Edinburgh, Liberal Citizenship, Pluralism and Muslims in Europe

You can find the programme here and the eventbrite page here

Please contact John Fahy (jef96@georgetown.edu) with any queries