Open Theology (www.degruyter.com/view/journals/opth/opth-overview.xml) - an international Open Access, peer-reviewed journal published by De Gruyter, invites applications for position of LANGUAGE EDITORS

Ideal candidate profile:

- PhD or PhD student in theology, religious studies or related disciplines covered by the journal (e.g. psychology of religion, philosophy, sociology of religion, Oriental Studies etc.)
- native English speaker
- computer and Internet proficiency

Language Editors correct and improve the language of submitted manuscripts. They work remotely using their computer and internet connection. They edit few articles a year and are not remunerated.

Responsibilities:

- detect and correct inadvertent errors, mistakes in grammar, spelling, syntax and punctuation
- improving the style of English, polishing fluency, providing internal language consistency throughout the entire document

The Editors will have opportunity to acquire experience and understanding of professional publishing. Their names will be added to the list of Editors on our website and they may be provided with certificates of collaboration.

Interested candidates are invited to send their applications, including CV and motivation letter, to Managing Editor of the journal Dr. Katarzyna Tempczyk at katarzyna.tempczyk@degruyteropen.com with "Open Theology / Language Editor" in subject line.

Applications will be collected untill November 7, 2020.
